 2. Employees are responsible to maintain appropriate, professional boundaries with coworkers.
 3. No employee shall use derogatory language in their written or verbal communications to or about clients or coworkers.
 4. No employee shall impose their personal beliefs or values on clients or coworkers in a manner inconsistent with job duties, agency mission and values, or client service plans.
 5. All employees shall avoid negative criticism of colleagues in communications with clients or with other professionals. Negative criticism may include demeaning comments that refer to a colleague's level of competence or to individuals' attributes such as race, color, ethnicity, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, political beliefs, religion, or disability.

1. An employee may be the parent or guardian for a child who becomes active as a Department client. This raises the potential for a dual relationship (personal and professional at the same time) which is not in the best interest of the child or employee and must be avoided.
 - a. If an employee's child becomes active with the Department, the employee will ensure that they do not have professional responsibilities for their child including but not limited to serving as the case manager, case manager supervisor, residential service staff, etc. Employees are encouraged to consult with their supervisor or Human Resources if they are unsure about whether a dual relationship exists.

 - a. If the employee has a professional relationship with a child for whom they wish to become a non-relative or relative care giver, they will notify their supervisor to determine if accommodation can be made so that they no longer have a professional relationship with the child prior to placement.
 - 3. Employees may pursue becoming a foster, relative or non-relative caregiver for a child in custody of the Department but are required to do the following before placement occurs:
 - a. If foster placement, the employee will work with DFS to complete any required background/home study. If the placement is determined to be in the best interest of the child, DFS will consult with the employee and their supervisor regarding whether a professional relationship exists between the child and the employee. If a professional relationship exists, the employee's supervisor will determine if accommodation can be made so they no longer have a professional relationship with the child prior to placement. If accommodation can't be made, the employee will not be approved as the foster parent for the child.
 - b. If relative or non-relative placement, the employee will notify their supervisor and determine whether dual relationships can be avoided and the placement is in the best interest of the child and employee.
